DAN HON STRIKES FELLOW PRISONER

Chinaman Used Chair with Telling
Effect and Adams County Jail
Has Lively Rumpus Other Inmates
Take Hand in Affray.

Prisoners in the Adams County jail this morning had a lively time of it for a few minutes when So Ho Dan Hon, the mentally deranged Chinaman, went on a rampage and before he was locked in his cell had struck another prisoner a terrific blow over the head with a chair. The victim of the Chinaman's rage was Henry Mickle, of Fountain Dale. The jail physician was summoned to attend to his injuries which were confined to the head and are not serious.

Since Dan Hon was incarcerated last week he has shown numerous signs of nervousness and kept his eye on the other prisoners constantly, evidently fearing that they might do him some harm. He was allowed the freedom of the corridor and all the other inmates of the jail kept watch on him to prevent him causing any trouble.

It was not until this morning, however, that he actually became violent. The prisoners got their mail at the usual hour and Mickle started to read several letters. Dan Hon, evidently believing they had something to do with him, stealthily approached. Mickle did not see him coming until the chair was about to descend; he dodged but not in time and one of the legs struck him above the eye, causing a wound which bled profusely.

Immediately the other prisoners, who were seated about the table, jumped upon the Chinaman and subdued him. The Oriental had his face cut in the melee, and was finally pushed into his cell after which the other prisoners pulled shut the door. Sheriff Thompson and Deputy Sheriff Bowers were absent from the jail at the time but they were quickly summoned only to find that the prisoners themselves had taken the matter thoroughly in hand and all that was needed was to secure the services of a physician which was quickly done.

Dan Hon has quite a cut on the side of his head and the physician wanted to dress it for him but the Chinaman jabbered so incessantly and objected so strenuously to any one entering his cell that it was impossible to care for his injuries.

The prisoners claim that during the excitement James Oberlander, the deaf and dumb prisoner from New Oxford, suddenly found his speech loud enough to yell "Hold him! Hold him!"

TURKEY OWNERS GET BIG PRICES

Advance of Two Cents a Pound over Last Year and Farmers are well Pleased. Five Tons Shipped from Gettysburg for Thanksgiving.

City markets will receive a smaller number of Adams County turkeys for the Thanksgiving market this year than for many seasons past, the shortage which is reported from other parts of the State being very apparent here, and the prices correspondingly higher. The local poultry houses paid 18 cents a pound live weight the past few weeks as compared with 16 cents last year. The farmers, selling the birds singly to local consumers, have been asking 20 cents.

From the two Gettysburg poultry firms here were shipped this week 800 turkeys, weighing 10,000 pounds or five tons. Almost no turkeys were sent out from Biglerville, but Fairfield, New Oxford, and several other places contributed their usual share.

While most of the birds were dressed before shipment one of the dealers, at least, sent nearly all his turkeys alive to a nearby market preferring to do that rather than run the risk of heavy loss in the event of some unlooked for circumstance. Concerning the size of the turkey crop in Adams County this year one of the dealers said this morning:

"It is entirely true that there are not so many turkeys in this section as last fall. Farmers do not generally have as many though the general average is brought up considerably by large flocks that are scattered here and there over the county. The shortage is further increased through the invasions of some Harrisburg dealers who came into the upper end of the county and bought up a number of the birds there, taking them direct to Harrisburg instead of having them go through the hands of one or other of the local dealers."

Whatever may be the condition or the reason for it, the farmers are rejoicing in the increased price.

GETS ESSAY PRIZE

Governor of Maryland Presents Medal to Emmitsburg Girl.

Miss Mae Rowe, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Frank Rowe, and an eighth grade pupil in the Emmitsburg public schools, won the first prize, a gold medal, in the contest in Frederick county for the best essay on "How the Daughters of Maryland Farmers Can Make the Farm Home More Attractive." The prize was donated in the contest conducted under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of Maryland. Miss Rowe, accompanied by Miss Mary J. Shuff, principal of the Emmitsburg schools, went to Baltimore Friday where in the Fifth Regiment Armory at night Governor Goldsborough presented the prize.

The price is considered a good one but does not nearly represent the amount of money Mr. Ledy had invested in the property.

GET $3300 FOR BEING PRESENT

That Sum to be Distributed among the Teachers of the County for their Attendance upon Annual Session of the Institute.

Adams County's teachers will be paid no less than $3300 for attending the sessions of the annual institute last week. The borough and township school boards will make payments out of their own funds, at the time of their next regular meetings.

There are no less than 221 teachers in Adams County. Prof. W. A. Burgoon, superintendent of the Gettysburg schools, whose illness prevented him from attending the sessions, was the only one of the entire number not present and each of the other teachers is paid $3.00 a day for attending, or a total of $15.00 for the week.

The teachers do not have much left from their $15.00 checks when they take into account the expenses they must incur in attending institute. By the time their carfare, registration fee, and boarding are paid, more than half the money they receive for the week is spent, and the few "extras" which usually confront them take up the balance.

It is a pleasant relief from the monotony of school room work, however, and the liberal allowance provided by the School Code for their attendance keeps them from actually losing any money by their period of instruction spent under capable lecturers, while the evening entertainments provide real recreation for them.

SOCIETY ANNIVERSARY

Hear Story of Bible's Influence in the Last Nineteen Centuries.

A large audience attended the services incident to the celebration of the sixty ninth anniversary of the Woman's Bible Society of Gettysburg in the Methodist church Sunday evening. The reports of the librarian and treasurer showed that, in addition to the work of buying and selling a large number of Bibles, the society had contributed the sum of $100 to the Pennsylvania Bible Society during the past year.

The address was made by Dr. A. R. Wentz on "The History of the Development of the Bible's Influence" and he divided this history into three periods, the time between the death of Christ and the Reformation, the period of the Reformation, and in modern times. It was an earnest and carefully prepared address containing a wealth of information which made it most appropriate to the event.

WON ON HOME FIELD

Emmitsburg Team Proves no Match for Local Gridiron Warriors.

The Gettysburg College foot ball team had little trouble with Mt. St. Mary's Saturday and won easily from them on Nixon Field 18-0. Three touchdowns were scored and in every instance the attempt to kick the goal failed, an omission that has stood out prominently all season. Coach O'Brien kept out a number of the first team on account of injuries, hoping to have the first string all in shape for the Thursday game at Lancaster. Rowe's open field work featured for Gettysburg. St. Mary's made consistent advances early in the first period but after that were never dangerous.

It will continue throughout the week.

DOCTOR KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

Fatality when: Ritter Automobile is Ditched. One Member of the Family just Installed as Pastor of Lutheran Church.

Gettysburg people were shocked this morning to hear that Dr. Nathaniel Ritter, aged seventy six years, of Allentown, was killed Sunday afternoon when the automobile of Thomas C. Darrah, of Reading, Recorder of Deeds of Berks County, was ditched between Amityville and Friedensburg. A high wind caused the blanket with which Mr. Darrah, the driver of the car, was covered, to become entangled in the pedals and he lost control of the car. Dr. Ritter was thrown out and his skull fractured.

Other occupants of the car were Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Kidler, of Reading. Rev. Horace Ritter and Rev. I. B. Ritter, of Allentown, president of the Allentown Conference of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, and the latter's wife, were following in another car.

Rev. Horace Ritter was installed Sunday morning as pastor of the Amityville charge of the Lutheran Church, and the party was on the way to Friedensburg, where he was to have been installed in the afternoon, when the accident occurred near Yellow House.

Dr. Ritter was a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in the class of '61, and had been actively engaged in practice in Lehigh County and Allentown ever since.

MISS SUSAN JACOBS

Attending Funeral Proves Fatal to Former County Woman.

A cold which developed into pneumonia, contracted while attending the funeral of her brother, Cyrus Jacobs, at Warble, Juniata county, last Sunday, caused the death of Miss Susan Jacobs, formerly of East Berlin, Saturday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Noah Hassler, Spring Grove, a niece, where she was visiting. The death occurred within a week after the burial of her brother. She was 72 years, 4 months and 3 days old.

En route to her home from Warble, Mrs. Jacobs stopped at Spring Grove, last Wednesday, for a visit at the Hassler home. The woman had rallied as late as noon Saturday, when she appeared in the best of spirits. A sudden change for the worse occurred, however, and the death followed several hours later. She was born in East Berlin, on July 17, 1843. From the latter place she went to Hanover, where she lived for the last 30 years. One sister, Mrs. Martha Reich, of Smith Station, is the only member of the family now living.

Her body was removed to the home of Levi Reich, at Smith Station, from which place the funeral will be held on Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Mt. Olivet cemetery, at Hanover. Rev. J. H. Hartman, pastor of the West Manheim Reformed church, will officiate.

MORE TEACHERS IN TIMES PLAN

Pupils Everywhere are Anxious to Engage in the Work for their Schools. High Aim of Proposition Makes it Popular.

Popularity of The Times plan is so strong among the pupils and patrons of the schools that it is drawing in many teachers who at first thought there would be little chance in their district.

At least twenty five names have been added to the list of active participants since it was last published. Teachers everywhere are finding the pupils anxious to engage in the work. The youngsters welcome the opportunity to get some insight into business and in most cases they appreciate the privilege of helping to earn something for the school room.

A number of school directors have spoken highly of the idea. One of the common questions in discussing the proposition is, "How can The Times come out by allowing such large commissions?" The answer to this is easy. The Times does not "come out", or rather it comes out at the wrong end just now. These new subscribers will be taken at a loss, but we have sufficient confidence in our paper to believe that these subscribers will renew their subscriptions when they learn the kind of a paper The Times is. Every time we get a new subscriber we get a new friend for the paper and ultimately that pays very well.

In determining the manner in which to proceed with the work most of the teachers are adopting the suggestion given before: to assign certain residents of their community to be interviewed by each pupil. The pupil will go to the man who does not get the paper and tell him in a straightforward way just what his money is to be used for. The families who refuse to help these youngsters, imbued with the spirit of advancing their schools, are few and far between.

Some schools will not earn more than $10 because their community is already well covered with Times subscribers, but that $10 will fill a long felt need. They can be proud of the fact that they did what their chance permitted. However, when the results are all in, a week from next Saturday, it will be found that the schools winning the prizes were the ones that kept on working after they thought they had done everything they could.

A good thing to remember is that it is not always the biggest district nor the largest school that does the best work.

ALLIES SEND DEFI TO GREECE

Join War or Demobilize, is Ultimatum.

ASK ANSWER AT ONCE

The Entente Powers Declare a Commercial Blockade of Hellenic Nation, Athens Hears.

London, Nov. 22.—The entente allies have demanded that Greece either join with them and fulfill her treaty obligations to Serbia or demobilize, and to impress King Constantine that they mean what they say the allies have declared a commercial blockade of the Hellenic empire, according to despatches from Athens.

There is no confirmation of these statements available here, but it is very certain that Lord Kitchener, the British war secretary, who has an hour's audience with the King of Greece and afterward saw Premier Skouloudis, took a firm stand and told them what the allies could and would do unless the demands were conceded.

The Greek cabinet met to consider the situation and a few hours should show what Greece's future attitude will be. The Greek government again has affirmed its friendliness to the allies, but has not yet taken the steps required to prevent Greece from being counted among the friends of the central powers.

The entente allies will not permit any delay; the position of the Serbian armies makes any prolongation of the present uncertainty impossible. Already the Serbians are making what may be their last stand before Monastir and also on the plains of Kosovo.

According to the Athens report the announcement of the commercial blockade was made in the form of a note issued by the British legation at Athens.

Leaders of the Greek party of Eleutherios Venizelos, who twice resigned the premier ship on account of King Constantine's opposition to his policy of entering the war on the side of Serbia and her allies, held a meeting in Athens to decide upon their attitude in regard to the forthcoming general elections.

Reuters' correspondent at Athens wires that the leaders decided to urge the party not to participate in the election, inasmuch as the men serving with the colors will not have opportunity to do so. Moreover, it is considered doubtful whether, in the event of another victory at the polls for the Venizelos party, it would be able to put its policy into effect.

RUSS HURL BACK FOE

Continue Their Victorious Attacks on Invading Armies.

London, Nov. 22.—Despatches from Petrograd indicate that the Russian armies are continuing their victorious advance on both the Riga and Austrian fronts.

General Innoff has achieved a brilliant series of victories in the latter theatre and now threatens to throw the Austrians back, even to the Bug river. Substantial Russian gains have followed an Austrian counter offensive along the Sty river.

A telegram has been received by the Russian foreign office in Petrograd from Teheran stating that the Persian government had adopted measures to put an end to the agitation said to have been carried on in Persia by German agents, and to disarm bands of irregulars. In consequence of this action the Russian troops which have been advancing toward Teheran will refrain from entering the city.

American Woman Lost in Serbia
Chicago, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Mildred Farwell, great-granddaughter of Dolly Madison, noted beauty and rebel from idle society, has disappeared in Serbia, where she had gone to write of the Teutonic advance toward Constantinople. John T. McCutcheon cabled the last word concerning Mrs. Farwell several days ago. He reported that he had met her traveling toward Monastir, which has been subjected to a terrible bombardment during the last few days.

Zeppelin Explodes
Copenhagen, Nov. 22.—The news paper Stifts-Vitende, Ribe, Denmark, says it learns that Zeppelin No. 18 was destroyed as a result of an explosion while it was being inflated in a shed at Tondern (Prussia). One German soldier was killed and eight were wounded, and the roof of the shed was blown off, the newspaper adds.

SCORES GERMAN PRISON CAMP

U. S. Staff Finds Conditions
Intolerable.

London, Nov. 22.—The British press bureau has published the reports of James W. Gerard, the American ambassador to Germany, and members of the embassy staff in Berlin, relative to the condition of British prisoners of war in the camp at Wittenburg, Prussia.

Lithgow Osborne reported that his whole impression of the camp authorities was utterly unlike that which he had received in every other camp he visited. Instead of regarding their charges as honorable prisoners of war, he stated they apparently regarded them as criminals whom a regime of fear alone sufficed to keep in obedience.

"All evidence of kindly human feeling between the authorities and the prisoners was lacking," said Mr. Osborne, "and in no other camp have I found signs of fear on the part of the prisoners that what they might say to me would result in suffering for them afterwards."

Mr. Osborne said many prisoners complained that their clothing was torn by dogs brought into the camp at night by the Germans.

Sir Edward Grey, the British secretary of state for foreign affairs, having informed Ambassador Gerard that he had read with great concern this report on conditions at Wittenburg, Ambassador Gerard himself forwarded on November 8 a report of a personal visit to the camp.

GORIZIA FORTS CRUMBLE

Three Days' Bombardment Hazes Austrian Fortifications.

Rome, Nov. 22.—After an intense bombardment lasting three days, during which scores of Italian guns of all calibers rained tons of steel on the Austrian positions, the fortifications of Gorizia have been destroyed and few of the forts guarding the advance of the Italian forces are left standing.

This information is contained in a despatch from Laibach, Austria, received here from Geneva, Switzerland.

The Italian war office, in an official despatch, says the bombardment of the Austrian positions in the Gorizia zone continues, and that Italian infantry successfully attacked the Austrians northwest of Osjava and that the Italians gained a firm footing on part of the summit of Monte San Michele.

Hunter, Shot by Companion, Dies

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 22.—Buyers representing large corporations are in the field buying the 1915 tobacco crop raised in this county. Hundreds of acres were contracted for at ten cents for wrappers and three cents for fillers, which will mean receipts for the farmers of $150 an acre.

SERBS ESCAPE TEUTON TRAP

Forces Retreat Westward and Join Montenegrins.

MAY HOLD ROAD OPEN

The Southern Serbian Army is in a More Precarious Position—Harassed by Albanian Tribesmen.

Paris, Nov. 22.—Retreating westward, the Serbian army has established a contact with the Montenegrins on the Lim river, which runs a few miles west of the Montenegrin border, escaping from the jaws of the closing Teuton-Bulgarian vise, one of which is now at Novibazar and the other close to Pristina.

The southern Serbian army is known to be in an even more precarious position, although little authentic information is available. To harass any Serbian force which approaches the Albanian border, large forces of Albanian tribesmen, who have been armed by Austria, are said to have assembled on the border.

The Serbians who have reached the Montenegrin forces on the Lim are being attacked by the enemy, who is in considerable force, but it is expected that they will be able to hold the road open for the escape of the others. For a few miles the Lim river flows just inside the Montenegrin border, but it is probable that the Serbians and Montenegrins united further north where the Lim passes through Serbian territory.

The Serbians succeeded in joining with the Montenegrins and engaging with the enemy on Friday. The official communication from Cetinje received at the Montenegrin consulate says:

"Our troops, with Serbians, sustained heavy assaults on the river Lim on Friday. Our army in the Sanjak of Novibazar was obliged to retire on the principal positions of defence. On the other fronts artillery engagements continued. Several infantry attacks were repulsed."

The war office made no announcement concerning the activities of the Franco-British forces in southern Serbia.

All of old Serbia is now lost to the Serbians and all of their country which remains to them is a small space near the Montenegrin frontier and the ground held in Serbian Macedonia by the Franco-British troops and the Serbian force which was forced to withdraw from Katchanik pass, Tetovo and Babuna pass.

FINDS MAN UNDER HER BED

Twenty Years' Nightly Looking Brings Undesired Reward.

Turboville, Pa., Nov. 22.—Always before settling snugly to rest, Miss Grace Derr, of Turboville, for twenty years, it is said, nightly looked under her bed, fearing she would find a man there—not that she expected to find one there, but just because she hated to get under the covers without taking the customary precaution.

Saturday night, after donning her nightgown, she, in a perfunctory way, following the custom of so many years, took a nonchalant glance under the bed, and then she screamed and fainted.

The long-expected unwelcome visitor was there. He sprang out and disappeared through a window, but the screams brought neighbors, and Albert Shade was arrested. He admitted his guilt and said he forced a poor dove, while Miss Derr was away.

Miss Derr's mother is out of town and she was living there alone. The man was sent to the Northumberland county jail to await trial.

Como, Italy, Nov. 22.—Porter Charlton, the American who recently was tried on a charge of murdering his wife and who was found guilty and sentenced to six years and eight months' imprisonment, was released. He is in good health and spirits.

By reason of the time that Charlton had been under restraint and an additional one year taken from his sentence under an amnesty, Charlton was compelled to serve only twenty-five days in prison after his conviction and sentence. Charlton killed his wife in 1910 and placed the body in a trunk and threw it into lake Como.

ROOT CANDIDATE FOR G. O. P. NOMINATION

He Will Accept if Campaign
Kills Him.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—Elhu Root, of New York, is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

This became known on indubitable authority. It was learned that Mr. Root, who is in Washington, has told close personal friends that while he will not himself wage a campaign for the nomination, he will accept it if it is offered him. The ex-senator declared he would accept the nomination if the forthcoming campaign killed him.

It developed in this connection that the movement to procure the presidential nomination for Root has reached national proportions, and already is backed by a large proportion of that wing of the Republican party which represents the special interests. The men who joined in exerting the pressure which overruled Root's disinclination to enter the campaign include some of the biggest figures in the Republican party. A mention of their names, which is prohibited by the bond of confidence placed by the informant, would create the impression that the Root campaign already has assumed highly formidable proportions.

BROKEN NECK NOW MENDED

Surgeons Bring Marvelous Recovery
to Man Thought Good as Dead.

Nyaack, N. Y., Nov. 22.—John A. Salve, of Oradell, N. J., left the Nyaack hospital after one of the most remarkable recoveries known to medical science.

Last June Salve broke his neck as the result of a dive into two feet of water at a bathing beach near Nyaack. His death was thought to be but a question of forty-eight hours. Today Salve is about as well as he ever was and surgeons say that in a few weeks he will completely regain the use of his lower limbs.

When Salve's head came in contact with the bed of the Hudson river he fractured his fifth and sixth cervical vertebrae. The fracture was so extensive, the surgeons decreed that to operate would be fatal and that Salve's only chance rested in other methods of treatment. His head and neck were propped with sandbags, and for weeks the man moved neither to the right nor left. He retained full possession of his mental powers, however, and talked freely of business and home affairs.

The child tried to take the cat from the dog, her mother and grandfather going to her aid. The wounds were cauterized at the post hospital at Fort Dupont.

UNDERSEA PHONES GUARD NEW YORK

Inventor Has Plan to Save City From Surprise Attack.

WOULD DETECT SUBMARINES

Recent "Capture" of City by "Hostile" Fleet Pointed Out as Indication That Coast Is Not Properly Defended—Instruments Pick Up Sounds Under Water.

In the early morning of Oct. 28, a fleet consisting of ten battleships, six torpedo boat destroyers and five mine sweepers, under the cover of a fog which the searchlights of Fort Totten and Fort Hamilton could not penetrate, slipped past the big guns guarding the entrance of New York harbor and captured the city. Had a less friendly chief than Commander Harris, launching the victor the city now might be reduced to ashes.

The surprising part of the coup was that it was accomplished not only with all the forts on a full war footing for the war game, in which they were participating by order of the navy department, but also with ample warning that the attempt to take the city would be made.

"I see no reason why the feat could not be duplicated under similar conditions in actual warfare," Edward F. Chandler, an engineer and inventor, who has devoted much study to the subject of coast defense, said. "The capture of New York was through no fault of the forts themselves or through a lack of alertness on the part of the defenders. The capture was not due to the superior strategy of the enemy fleet, which, however, did avail itself of every advantage offered."

"The capture was made possible by peculiar weather conditions, which more than offset the natural advantages of land batteries over naval artillery. On the morning of Oct. 28, between 1 and 3 o'clock in the morning, there was a heavy fog. Under the curtain of this fog the fleet, with all lights doused except a small screened light in the stern of each vessel to guide its neighbors, dashed under the nose of the big guns and was off Norton's Point before it was discovered."

After the fleet had slipped through the limited arc of fire of the forts the guns were useless, and had there been no fog in port to engage the enemy there would have been nothing to deter him from engaging in the fascinating pastime of wrecking the various landmarks of Manhattan Island.

"Even with the weather conditions good, however, it would be possible for an enemy fleet to escape the fire of the forts and to go within range of the city by the use of tricks which have been successfully demonstrated in mimic warfare."

Mr. Chandler for some time has been insisting that nothing should be left to chance in the protection of New York.

"The harbor should be protected against the possibility of a surprise attack under the cover of unfavorable weather conditions, a smoke pall, the glare of searchlights or, in fact, any kind of ruse to throw dirt in the gunners' eyes," he asserts.

Mr. Chandler is the inventor of a system of submarine microphones which, he says, afford positive and absolute protection against a surprise attack from the sea. The submarine microphone is nothing more than an under water telephone transmitter.

These delicate waterproof instruments pick up under water sounds and send them over a wire to a receiver on shore. With a station in the fort connecting with the system of microphones spread out in checker board fashion on the bottom of the entrance to the harbor it would be possible under all weather conditions and despite darkness or the glare of searchlights and without the aid of searchlights not only to locate the direction from which any enemy vessel may be approaching long before it comes within range, but also to determine its speed and direction and its approximate position when it comes within range, so that the fire of the forts can be concentrated on it even though it cannot be seen, Mr. Chandler asserts.

Protects Against Surprises. It should be explained that the ocean floor about the harbor entrance would be divided up into squares with microphones on the corners, these squares being accurately charted and the exact range of each known in the fort. If the buzzing of the microphones around square No. 1,527, for instance, indicated that a vessel was passing over that area a hail of explosive steel could be hurled on a moment's notice on that spot from every gun in the fort. If the vessel survived that "baptism of fire" its new position would be indicated at once in an adjacent square by the sound of its propellers in the delicate submarine ears.

"The system," says Mr. Chandler, "is especially valuable as a means of protection against a surprise attack by submarine, because it is even more effective in detecting the approach of an underwater craft. The microphone system robs the submarine of its chief reason for taking away from it the secrecy of its movements."

Beware of the Colors. Art Critic Warns Women.

Professor Parsons Tells of "Crimes" Committed in Selecting Clothes.

"Art is the quality of perfect fitness. The war is forcing us to commercial art. Public sentiment is driving us to personal art."

With these three premises to start with Frank Alvah Parsons, president of the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts, made his comments at an art meeting at Kansas City on the things that are not art and commended some that are.

It is the women that dictate art worst in dress, he declares, and that is due to a disregard of the fundamental facts of the three primary colors—yellow, red and blue—as follows:

"Yellow means light, cheer, and is the sunshine of color."

"Red is blood, is hot, the color of passion."

"Blue is the ice of color and means rest."

"Most women know that white makes them look larger than black," he continued, "but they do not realize that red makes them look a third larger when they dress in it or that it makes a room look a third smaller to decorate it in red."

He also said:

"The feckly woman who wears red commits a crime against herself."

"Orange is the basest and crudest color of all. The one who wears it would enjoy living under an elevated railway."

"The boy who wears a pink necktie is liable to be mistaken for his sister."

"Bright red is the color of passion. It indicates a hull and would a human if he was still human and not so calloused."

"Light colors mean youth and femininity and laughter."

"Dark colors mean dignity and masculinity and often depression."

"The color a woman chooses advertises her and often tells a scandal."

NEW SECRET OF WIRELESS FOUND

Invention May Doom Cable For Phones and Telegraph.

STATIC CURRENT OVERCOME

Professor Pupin, However, Will Withhold His Discovery Until After War So That Deliberate Cannot Make Use of It—Says It Will Revolutionize Wireless.

Professor Michael I. Pupin, whose inventions aided in making long distance telephony possible, announces an invention which, he says, will revolutionize wireless telephony and telephony.

Professor Pupin has perfected a receiver which is sensitive only to such waves as the operator desires. This instrument, he said, is the one thing that is needed to make possible the transmission of wireless messages between any two points on the earth's surface.

It will make the arts of wireless telephony and telegraphy commercially practicable over long distances and may sound the doom of the cable.

Professor Pupin declined to describe the apparatus on the plea that it was too soon. He said that he would not make his invention public until after the war. "I do not intend an enemy should benefit by it," he added.

He did not, however, hesitate to describe what had led up to his invention. He said:

"Eliminates Static Electricity. The most important problem facing aerial communication," he said, "is the elimination of static electricity. Static is the curse of the wireless engineer and the one reason that wireless telegraph stock has never paid dividends."

"Can it be eliminated? When we look at it first it seems impossible. But if we study the functions of certain human organs an idea is suggested to us."

"There are sounds that the human ear cannot hear and colors the human eye cannot detect. That is because the eye and ear remain unresponsive to those vibrations that are beyond their range."

"Static is of a higher pitch than the electrical vibrations used in wireless telephony or the vibrations of the human voice which are used in wireless telephony. Therefore we have to imitate what is done in the human body."

"We have to build a structure that will act selectively and amplify continuous electrical waves and remain unresponsive to irregular electric impulses."

"We have done this already successfully. It is scientifically completed, but not sufficiently completed to be fool proof when used in the applied arts. I hope before long to make it absolutely fool proof."

Describes His Amplifier.

Professor Pupin described how he had evolved the idea of the amplifier.

He said the idea had come to him from the tiny cells in the human ear that amplify and make audible the faintest sounds.

Professor Pupin made the announcement that an American professor, Joseph Henry of Princeton, was the first to announce the existence of electric oscillations, on which wireless telegraphy is founded.

"Professor Henry made his announcement in 1840," he said, "a fact known by few of his countrymen, who have always allowed the claim made by the Germans for Professor Heinrich Hertz."

BETTER DEAD THAN CRIPPLED

Chicago Hospital Physicians Decide Not to Save Defective's Life.

In a Chicago hospital a ballot taken resulted in a decision not to operate on a deformed and mentally deficient child. The child's life could have been saved.

The infant's mother, told that an operation might save the child's life, though not save it from being an idiot, wept and agreed to abide by the judgment of the physicians. Of a score of the hospital nurses consulted one alone voted for the life of the child.

Dr. H. J. Haiselden took the responsibility and did not perform the operation.

"It is a question of ethics," said Dr. Haiselden. "While we all know physicians do not allow monstrosities to live, the line must be drawn somewhere. I have drawn the line in this case."

"The child could have been saved as one more idiotic defective. Defectives are prolific. It might reproduce its kind, and these initial deformities would have become magnified and multiplied."

Fifteen million Red Cross Christmas seals are now being distributed throughout the State, according to a statement issued by the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, which acts at State agent for the American Red Cross for the sale of these seals. The Parent Teachers Association will direct the sale in Gettysburg.

The State Society is making plans more extensively than ever before to secure this year a record sale in Pennsylvania. Traveling organizers are being sent through every county of the State to arouse interest. Women's clubs, lodges, civic leagues and other public bodies are actively co-operating, and hundreds of towns, large and small, all over the State are already preparing for the sale. By these means and others, the State Society is endeavoring to double the sale of last year, whereby over 4,000,000 seals were sold.

Children Turn out with Others to Aid Sick Farmer.

Friends and neighbors as well as the school children and their teachers turned out to aid Daniel Benedict, tenant on the farm of Horace Keesey, who had been on the sick list for some time. They husked 30 acres of corn for him that had been standing in the field because Benedict was unable to attend to the work.

The field borders on the school grounds. Fifty three shocks are put to the credit of the pupils, who worked only during the noon hour and at recess. The gift was greatly appreciated by the family, who knew nothing of the arrangement until they saw the crowd of merry workers in the field.

Many of the workers brought their dinners with them while others who resided nearby returned to their homes for dinner and took with them those who had not provided for the occasion.

FOR BETTER CARE OF YOUR HEALTH

State Commissioner Advises Annual Examinations. Weekly Letter on Hygiene Issued to People of Pennsylvania.

Everyone should undergo a physical examination once a year, and every man and woman should be as careful about correcting weak spots or weak organs as in fixing up the defective places in an automobile or a typewriter, declares Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, State Commissioner of Health, in a week-end article on health.

Dr. Dixon says that everyone doubtless has some weak spot, but few know what it is or take the trouble to find out which of the organs threatens trouble. The average man and woman ought to be better posted on physical condition than they are on matters about their business or households. The commissioner says:

"The chances are that unless you have a thorough physical examination you could not tell, for symptoms are misleading and oftentimes their manifestation is general or sympathetic, indicating the trouble is located in some other organ than the one which is the actual seat of the trouble."

"If there is a knock in the engine of your automobile you are the first to desire an overhauling to rectify the trouble. You know if a mechanical defect of this sort continues it is going to multiply the trouble before long and that is just what happens with the human mechanism."

"It is well known by the medical profession that those suffering from organic complaints may often, through vigorous adherence to certain rational methods of living, recover sufficiently to live long and useful lives, while those suffering from functional disorders may, by following out the instructions of able medical men, entirely recover their health."

"Everyone suffering with a persistent cold, headache or pains should consult a good physician and submit themselves to a thorough physical examination. It would be well for every one to be examined once a year. This should include an examination of the blood vessels, blood, heart, lungs, kidneys, a consideration of weight in regard to height and the general activities of the various organs."

"Such an examination superficially made is of no value. It should be thorough and the daily routine and habits of the individual carefully considered in relation to his physical condition."

"Men ordinarily are obliged to submit to a medical examination now and then when they take out life insurance. Women are not so often insured and hence under ordinary circumstances are more apt to neglect physical examination. It is equally essential to both."

RAILWAY MEN GO TO FRANCE

Ammunition Plants Working at Top Speed, and Most of Their Product Is Shipped to Russia—Financial Help Is Also Being Considered by Tokyo Bankers.

The work of organizing for the increased manufacture of war supplies, especially for Russia, is proceeding in Japan. At first the military authorities were quite averse to permitting the manufacture of munitions by private factories, but they are now ready to utilize every possible means, public and private, for giving practical assistance to the allies as much as possible, and as speedily as possible, says a Tokyo correspondent of the Chicago Daily News.

Therefore it is no surprise to read in the Jiji Shimpu that a contract has been made between a firm in Vladivostok and an Osaka merchant for certain war materials of the value of 7,000,000 yen about $8,500,000, to be supplied by the end of next May.

Feared Revealing of Secrets. The following is quoted from the Japan Times:

"The army authorities were known to be jealous to monopolize the manufacture of arms and ammunition. For that purpose they were strongly opposed to the existence of private factories for manufacturing war materials. This opposition was chiefly based upon the necessity of keeping military secrets to themselves.

"Now, however, a great change has come over their attitude in this respect. They are now found to be encouraging private enterprise to meet the Russian demand. They have already shown themselves willing to help private undertakings with their experience in the manufacture of war materials. Military experts have been ordered to assist private concerns.

"It is really remarkable that such a change has come over the attitude of the military authorities, who are generally identified with conservatism and exclusiveness of the first order. This is considered to be one of the most striking effects of the present war, and before it is ended it is felt that Japan must be prepared to receive much more of the influence causing unexpected transformations in various forms.

"The war in Europe has already caused not a few unexpected tendencies, among which the new attitude of the military authorities is certainly the most conspicuous. The influence of the war may extend to other quarters, and Japan in her endeavor to assist Russia and her allies may ultimately reap the benefit of realizing a remarkable progress in her manufacturing capacities when the war is ended. However, this is looking only at the bright side, and it will be well for the people to be prepared for whatever emergencies may be brought up by the greatest of the wars ever fought by the nations."

Railway Workers For France. Another way of helping the allies is pointed out by the Japan Times in these lines:

"It is reported that the railway board has recently received overtures from the French government for the supply of Japanese railway engineers and drivers because of the scarcity of railway and tramway drivers in France, where almost all men between twenty and fifty years of age have been sent to the front. The terms proposed are said to be 180 yen ($29) a month salary and extra allowance of 90 yen a month, the period of contract being five years. The traveling expenses are to be borne by the French government. The authorities are not yet determined as to whether the overtures be accepted or not.

"The number of engineers and drivers required is not given, but as there are about 4,226 engineers and firemen in the service of the Japanese government railways at present some of the number could be sent to France. Besides these there are many reserve engineers who would be glad to accept the offer in view of the high salary offered.

"The Tokyo civil electric bureau can also supply some 1,000 drivers from its reserve force. Among the drivers in the employ of the civil electric bureau there are a number of graduates of private universities, middle schools or other institutions who can be recommended for the service proposed. A monthly salary of 180 yen, with an extra allowance of 90 yen a month, is far better treatment than given to junior high officials of the government. Fresh from the universities or high schools, they are not yet determined as to whether the overtures be accepted or not.

It has also been suggested that Japan may assist the allies financially. She has 400,000,000 yen (nearly $200,000,000) of gold in London and would place that at the disposal of Great Britain on satisfactory terms.

DEATH IN THE MOONLIGHT.

Illuminating Shells From Shore Batteries Lit Up the Terrible Scene. French Prevented From Trying Rescue Work by Shots From Land—Torpedo's Deadly Work.

A midnight battle by moonlight, with the guns of two French destroyers roaring broadsides in reply to German salvoes, preceded the recent sinking of a large German destroyer off Ostend, writes a Paris correspondent.

A torpedo sent the German to the bottom as she was running for cover of the shore batteries. She sank with all on board. The French destroyer sped away, comparatively unharmed by a terrible bombardment from the shore.

The complete story of the thrilling fight reached Paris in the form of a letter from a bluejacket aboard the leading French destroyer, which the writer called "O."

Fairy Scene For Deadly Battle.

"It was shortly after 11 o'clock at night," wrote the bluejacket aboard destroyer "O," "and we were patrolling before Ostend with all lights out. The B, another destroyer, was following, also with lights out, a short distance astern. The night was clear. There was a moon, and the sea was smooth as oil.

"All of a sudden we sighted a ship ahead. Its silhouette stood out boldly in the night. It was assuredly a German destroyer, bigger than we and better armed. Up to now she hadn't sighted us. Slowly she glided through the water, tranquilly itself.

"Swiftly every one was at his post without a sound. Gunners sleeping in their hammocks one instant were behind their guns the next, waiting for the command.

"Our commander signaled discreetly to the B astern. The B's crew, as silently as we, stood ready for action. The decks were cleared, and our engines were prepared for maximum speed.

Doubts Gone, the Ball Opens.

"There was a lingering doubt, however, that the destroyer might turn out to be a friend, but just as our commander signaled in order to make sure a shell screamed past us. The German destroyer had begun the party. He was much closer than he at first seemed.

"'Open fire!' our commander ordered. 'All our guns can fire broadsides, and we turned loose. The B did likewise. Our searchlights fell on the enemy ship and brought her out as plain as day. What she was getting from us was aptly.

"We were not a mile off. Our fire seemed perfectly timed. The enemy fired, too, at least one gun being superior in caliber to anything we carried, but he didn't touch us. The enemy's machine guns came into action, and the pat-pat-pat of these and the zip of the bullets added to the music of the night. It was now 11:20.

"The German vessel now seemed to be getting more than she wanted. She appeared to be trying to make off. Her fire slowed down and her searchlights went out. With all steam we went out after her in the direction of Ostend. It was plain now that she wanted to make port.

Shells Light Up the Scene.

"At the same instant the shore batteries opened up on us. They fired illuminating shells, and the great balls of fire lighted up the sea, making a fairy picture of the fight.

"We gained on the enemy and soon had him within 1,000 yards of us. He was still firing, but badly, and we of ten had a laugh at his expense.

"Then from our forward tube a torpedo was fired. I followed its course, plainly visible in the moonlight and bomb illuminated water, and saw it go straight toward its target. It struck. There was an explosion, and two minutes later the destroyer went down by the stern. The fight was over. It was 11:30 exactly.

"For a moment the commander thought of going to the rescue of the drowning German sailors, but the German batteries on shore bombarded us hotter than ever, now that we were close in, and we had to make tracks in another direction. It was tough on the sailors, but as somebody near me said, 'So much the worse for them.'

CHICAGO A BABY CENTER.

But One Out of Nine Dies Before It Is One Year Old.

Chicago is one of the "baby centers" of the world, but one baby in every nine born last year died before its first year was rounded out, 6,880 of the 59,000 born falling to live twelve months. These figures are included in a report submitted to Mayor Thompson by Dr. John D. Robertson, commissioner of health, one of whose foremost recommendations is that more money be spent on the prevention of disease and less on asylums and reform schools.

Last year, the report shows, the health department examined 115,567 children. Of these 63,921 were found defective, 45,187 were advised to seek immediate treatment and 19,771 took the advice, leaving 22,516 whose parents or guardians neglected them.

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING

By T. C. Harbaugh

LONG ROMANCE WAS FICTION

Girl Who Said She Was to Marry Physician Leaves Home to Buy Trousseau, but Gets Remains of Unidentified Man Killed by Train and Announces Her Lover Is Dead.

A case in psychology to attract will attention is that of Miss Julia Choate Crumley, daughter of the Rev. Howard Lee Crumley, superintendent of the Baptist Orphan's home of Atlanta, Ga., and her imaginary romance. In her mind she created the existence of a sweetheart who never was, mistaking the fiction for a manner to gain the full credence of her family and friends that she was engaged to "Dr. Algie Hensley." She showed letters and gifts of candy and trinkets from Canada supposed to have come from him.

For a time she was in despair, saying he had killed her. Then she announced a reconciliation, set the date for her wedding to "Dr. Hensley," then suddenly reported him killed in a railroad accident, brought a corpse to her home from Chicago, but just before the funeral broke down and said she had found the body to finish off the amazing fiction.

Miss Crumley is a young woman of considerable social distinction in Atlanta. She is an instructor and concert performer, talented and had never given evidence of abnormality until following a illness that came upon her some two years ago.

Announced "Betrayal."

She went to John Hopkins university, of Baltimore, and after an operation was absent in that more for three months. She went home apparently in sound health. She announced to her family and friends that while away she had become betrothed.

Her sweetheart she described as "Dr. Algie Hensley" of Chicago, whose home she said was in Quebec, Canada, where he lived with an only child. Letters were received by her dated Quebec, Canada, and even read to her friends. Boxes of candy and even flowers came to her all the way from Canada—ostensibly at least. To her family and friends she gave elaborate descriptions of the romance and character of her fiance. It is only recalled now that she never displayed a photograph of her fiance.

Then she declared that the "doctor" had telegraphed that he was seriously ill in Baltimore and must see her. She went there, but returned home weeping, stating that she had found him there in excellent health, but that he had said something to her to say he did not intend to marry her.

Engagement Renewed.

Then things brightened again. "Dr. Hensley" had written to implore for forgiveness. He begged her to marry him. She announced that she had consented that he was coming to Atlanta and that they would be married on Nov. 17.

Her Atlanta friends arranged many social entertainments in her honor—showers, teas and other parties—and she left town with the purpose, she announced, of purchasing her trousseau in New York. But the next heard from her was from Chicago. She telegraphed her family that "Dr. Hensley" had been killed in a railroad accident there.

There was the deepest concern for her when she returned to Atlanta with the body of "Dr. Hensley." It was given to an undertaking firm, prepared for burial and placed in her home. Just how suspicious arose as to the "psychic sweetheart" is not known, save that Dr. Bates Black, a nerve specialist, questioned Miss Crumley at length on the eve of the funeral, and she broke down.

BUSINESS SHORT $1 BILLS.

The United States is suffering from a dollar bill famine, according to United States Treasurer John Burke, who declared that, notwithstanding the fact that $14,000,000 in one dollar bills had been furnished to the subtreasuries, there is a demand for this variety of currency which the treasury has not been able to meet. Approximately $9,450,000 in two dollar bills has been issued to help meet the demand.

The treasury also has furnished approximately $17,000,000 silver certificates and United States notes. Half dollars, quarters and dimes have been shipped out to the amount of nearly $6,000,000, and more than $1,000,000 worth of nickels and pennies have been sent to the subtreasuries, making a total of approximately $18,000,000 in subsidiary coins sent to subtreasuries since Aug. 1.

Mr. Burke believes better business conditions are responsible for the demand.

Everyday Uses of the "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Roaster

1. Steaming fruit in jars.
2. Baking on top of stove.
3. Baking bread, biscuits or apples.
4. Baking or steaming fish.
5. Steaming asparagus or corn.
6. Frying food.
7. A food warmer.
8. A bread box or cake box.

The Turkey may be evenly browned because the "Wear-Ever" Roaster heats quickly throughout. Not only does it save meat because it is self-heating, but it saves fuel because aluminum stores up so much heat that the Roaster may be used for baking on top of the stove over one burner—thus making it unnecessary to use the oven.

Fruit steamed in jars remains unbroken, is beautiful in appearance and of superior flavor. No utensil is more generally useful every day of the year.

GIRL A PRISONER FOR DOZEN YEARS

Accident Reveals Plight of Young Woman at Easton, Md.

WORN TO MERE SKELETON

Nearly Starved and Underclothing Her Only Garb When Discovered. Was Locked in Small Room to Break Up Love Affair.

Easton, Md., Nov. 22.—One of the most brutal and inhuman cases of treatment of a child by a parent that ever has taken place in Talbot county or in Maryland was unearthed by Miss Emma Davies, local agent in Easton for the Children's Aid Society of Maryland, near St. Michaels. The facts in the case, so far as can be ascertained are as follows:

It is said that nearly twelve years ago Grace Marshall, daughter of Frank Marshall, who lives on a farm near St. Michaels, then sixteen years of age, was going with a young man, to whom her father and stepmother objected, and, to keep her from meeting him, they locked her up in a room in their house about eight by ten feet. One day she escaped from the room and jumped from a second-story porch to the ground, breaking a leg. She was picked up and carried in the house and the limb reset, but not properly, one leg being left about four inches shorter than the other.

After she recovered she never was allowed to leave the room. Marshall had other children, but on the death of his first wife they were distributed around among her relatives.

One of these little girls was placed in the home of her aunt on Kent island, and about seven or eight years ago, it is said, this child died and was brought from Kent island in a motorboat to Marshall's home, whence the funeral and burial took place. It is said that the rumor was circulated and never was contradicted by the Marshalls that the child that died and was buried was Grace, the reported invalid daughter.

This state of affairs is said to have been going on for the past eleven years, and all the girl's relatives and friends believed her dead until several weeks ago, when her uncle, John Hancock, of Wilmington, came down to Marshall's on a visit.

During the night he heard such unearthly moans and groans coming from the room adjoining that he could not sleep. It was kept up all night, and when light came he arose and sauntered out on the second-story of the porch. Still hearing the groans, he started an investigation. The shutters to Grace's room were fastened, but, peering through the cracks, he saw the girl wearing only her underclothing, crawling around the floor, apparently picking up crumbs and eating them.

He returned to the house and said nothing of the affair to his brother-in-law, but came to Easton that day and reported the case to Miss Davies, who began an investigation of the case. She went down to Marshall's residence, but was frankly told that no one was allowed to see her.

She then came back to Easton and through the assistance of Attorney J. Fletcher Clark obtained a writ of habeas corpus from the circuit court, and armed with this and accompanied by Deputy Sheriff James A. Cannon, they procured Orland Horsey's automobile and went down to Marshall's. And brought the girl back with them. Before removing her from the house Miss Davies was compelled to get her a dress, shoes and stockings. In fact, everything except underclothing, as she had nothing to wear. Miss Davies said when she entered the room she never in all her life and experience had seen such a pitiful sight. She said that in the room was an old-fashioned bedstead with a straw mattress on it, covered with a sheet and two old comforts to cover the girl. Miss Davies also was told that she was given two very scanty meals a day, which her condition plainly show was not sufficient for her.

Dr. Charles F. Davidson, who made an examination of the girl, said that she did not have two ounces of solid fat on her body, and that she had barely enough blood left to keep her alive, and that of the poorest kind. In fact, her condition was deplorable, she being nothing more than skin and bones.

Marshall, when placed on the stand, could give no reason for his treatment of his child in such a manner, except to say that he was not able to send her to a hospital, but neighbors said that he is a man of considerable means and a good bank account.

The girl has been taken to the home of her aunt, Mrs. M. H. James, where she is receiving medical treatment from Dr. Davidson. When weighed she weighed only fifty-seven pounds.

From what can be learned, there is a law against the beating of children by their parents unmercifully, but there does not appear, so far as the court or state's attorney can find any law on the statute books of Maryland that covers such a case as this one—the inhuman treatment of a child by its parents.

GUARDS ON PENNSY BRIDGE

Suspecting Dynamite Plot to Check Shipments of War Munitions.

Trenton, Nov. 22.—As a precaution against probable attempts to wreck the Delaware river bridge as a means of preventing the shipment of munitions for the allies the Pennsylvania Railroad company has placed two guards on duty at the bridge.

It is said that officials of the company recently learned of a plot to blow up the bridge, and an unconfirmed report has it that a quantity of dynamite was found in the vicinity.

Championship Won by Duchess Sky-lark Ormsby With 1,205 Pounds.

The world's championship for the production of butter fat by a single cow in a year has been won by Duchess Sky-lark Ormsby, a Holstein-Friesian, according to an announcement made in Minneapolis.

The Duchess produced 1,205.091 pounds of butter fat and gave 27,161.7 pounds of milk in the year and gave 558.1 pounds of milk and 34.35 pounds of butter in seven days. She ate less than twenty pounds of grain a day and remained in perfect health.

The tests were made on a farm near Minneapolis under the supervision of experts from the Wisconsin and Minnesota experimental stations.

LAND FOR ARMENIANS.

Texas Man to Finance Immigration of Several Thousand Persons.

If the plans of Major George W. Littlefield, the multimillionaire banker and ranchman of Austin, Tex., do not miscarry his 300,000 acre ranch in that part of the Texas Panhandle will be colonized with Armenians within the next few months.

H. A. Wroe, son-in-law of Major Littlefield and vice president of the American National bank of Austin, went to New York to confer with a representative of the Armenians who is seeking a location for the immigrants in this country. It is stated that Major Littlefield will finance the bringing over from Turkey of several thousand of them and provide them with homes on his big tract of land on the most favorable terms.

All of the land is adapted for the growing of various kinds of crops, and the 300,000 acres will easily accommodate 10,000 persons.

Those Who Are Willing to Fight to Be Designated by Armlets.

A unique and picturesque plan for labeling those fit and unfit for military service is announced by the British war office. Khaki brassards or armlets bearing the royal crown, which are now being prepared, will be distributed soon to the following:

First, the men who enlist and are placed in groups waiting the call to join the colors; second, to men who offer themselves for enlistment and are found physically unfit; third, to those who are invalided out of the service as unlikely for medical reasons to become efficient again.

The armlets of each class will have a distinctive marking. Thus all who are willing to fight will be distinguished from those who have not offered their services.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

WHOLESOME LUNCHEONS.

CREAM BISCUIT.—A cupful of sweet cream, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, three-quarters of a teaspoonful of soda, a half teaspoonful of salt, about one and a half cupfuls of bread flour. Sift soda, cream of tartar and salt with a cupful of flour. Beat into the cream enough additional flour so dough can be easily handled. Roll to half an inch thickness, cut with small round cutter and bake about twelve minutes in hot oven. This makes two dozen small biscuits.

JAPANESE CHOCOLATE CAKE.—One-half cupful of grated chocolate, one and one-half cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of butter, four eggs, one and three-quarter cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of soda and one cupful of sweet milk. Cook half of the milk with the chocolate until it is as thick as cream. Cream butter and sugar, add yolks of eggs beaten light; then add milk, flour and whites of eggs, a little at a time. Lastly add the chocolate and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake in layers.

FIG PUDDING.—One cupful sugar, one-half cupful butter, one-half cupful water, four level teaspoonfuls baking powder, two-thirds cupful flour, one-half cupful figs, chopped fine, whites of four eggs. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, sift the baking powder with the flour and add milk and flour alternately; add figs and fold in the whites of the eggs. Pour mixture into buttered molds. Place molds in kettle and add boiling water until it almost comes to top of molds. Boil fifteen minutes and place in cooler for two hours. Serve with hard sauce.

STEWED PRUNES.—Wash prunes well, put in kettle, cover with cold water and let stand all night. In the morning put on stove in same water. Boil until tender. Do not stir or mash. Set back on stove, where they will simmer until juice is a thick syrup and very little of it. Serve when cold with cream.

beginning by pleating the front and back according to perforations. After closing the seams the back is hemmed and the left adjusted underneath the lower edge of underbody. The front of the bodice is indicated by large "O" perforations, and to make this the lower edges are first gathered between double "TT" perforations and 2 inches above. Arrange on underbody, which, by the way, may be either of silk or lace, as preferred.

A pretty idea, too, is to make the waist in surplus effect. For this method of development close the under-arm and shoulder seams as notched. Gather along shoulder seam, and at lower edge of front and back between double "TT" perforations, also 2 inches above lower edge; center-front indicated by line of 3 and center-back by 2 small "O" perforations. Arrange on underbody, armhole edges and under-arm seams even; stitch lower edges together crossing in front and back as illustrated on reverse side of envelope. Tack the shoulder edges together from large "O" perforation in underbody to the armhole edge, drawing gathers to fit.

Now for the skirt. Close the right side seam as notched. Gather along seam and gather the left side edge between double "TT" perforations; draw gathers and stitch tape 4 1/2 inches long under gathers. Finish left side edges for a closing. Adjust, bringing lower back edge of skirt 2 inches below upper edge of skirt. Bring upper front edge of skirt to large "O" perforation near center-front of trimming piece and tack.

Close the puff seam as notched. Gather on crossline of small "O" perforations; draw gathers to the required size and stitch tape under gathers. Sew in armhole as notched, small "O" perforation at shoulder seam, easing in any fullness.

For a more economical development of the dress the front panel could be trimmed with two or three deeper flounces instead of the series of narrow frills.

Use for Eggshell.

A medical authority says the shell of an egg is used as an antacid, being better adapted to the stomach than chalk. The white of egg is an antidote in cases of poisoning with strong acids or corrosive sublimate. The poison will coagulate the albumen and if these poisons be in the system the white of an egg, if swallowed quickly, will combine with the poison and protect the stomach.

The Pawned Watch

By EUNICE BLAKE

One morning a man entered a pawnshop in the town of Hardsville and offered a good watch as security for a loan. The broker examined the watch, then looked up at the man who had brought it in. The latter, though fairly well dressed, had a troubled look in his eye.

"Whose initials are these?" asked the broker, referring to some letters engraved on the case.

"Oh, if you're going to hunt up my ancestors it'll take too much time," replied the man, and he reached for the watch. The broker surrendered it, and the man departed.

Now, it happened that the broker was in touch with the police and was giving them information as to suspected stolen goods offered at his shop. He telephoned the incident, describing the man, and a detective was put on his track.

Let us go back three years. Hiram Jenks, a bachelor with no relatives, one day called his clerk, Thomas Wentworth, into his private office and said:

"Tom, I have something important to say to you. When I first went into business I associated with me a man named Perkins. He speculated with funds belonging to the firm and sank money for me as well as himself. After a quarrel I put him out of the firm, and when we parted, giving me the ugliest look I ever received from a man, he said that he would get even with me some day. Since that day I have at times been fearful that he would keep his word. I suppose it is weak and foolish in me to brood over it, but I can't help it. At any rate, I wish to make provision in case anything happens. You will find a will in the safe leaving what little I have to you, and you can run this business just as I am running it now."

Jenks and Wentworth lived in rooms over the store. One morning the latter arose to find his employer murdered in his bed. Whatever valuables were in the room had been taken, leaving the impression that the murder had been committed for plunder. No clue to the murderer could be found, and when Wentworth presented a will in his favor for probate a suspicion was aroused that he had murdered the testator, who was still a young and healthy man, that he might enjoy the bequest in reality instead of in prospect. Up to this time no evidence whatever pointed to Wentworth, but now the police, who had been blamed for not hunting up the murderer, began to pick up threads and in time concocted a scheme to fix the murder upon him. It is astonishing how by constant digging and putting this and that together an apparently good case may be made against any accused person. Although this evidence against Wentworth rested on the flimsiest foundation, it was enough to set tongues wagging, and when the structure seemed to the state attorney to be complete the young man was arrested.

Wentworth was taken all aback at the accusation. He was incapable of doing anything to work up a case in his favor, but he had a sweetheart who, after the first shock, being satisfied of his innocence, went to work diligently for evidence to prove his innocence. Tom told her what his employer had said to him when at the time he informed him that he had made him his heir and his fears that the man who had asserted he would get even with him some day would make his words good. She began first to learn something about Perkins from the time he and his partner had separated. She finally located him one year after his threat and by dint of following up different leads kept on his track to a short time after the murder.

When the case came to trial the prosecution brought forth the evidence that had been adduced by the energetic police—he was relying on the political influences of the force in a coming election—bringing forth testimony of neighbors to prove that no one entered or came out of the store between 10 p. m. and 7 a. m., that a voice believed to be Jenks' had been heard to cry, "You ungrateful villain!" and that Wentworth had been seen a few days before the murder to steal into the house with a bludgeon.

The defense took no trouble to refute any of these charges. The sweetheart of the accused, Miss Marian Thorndyke, was the only important witness on the other side, and her testimony was elicited, as usual, by questions of counsel. He led her to state how she had hunted for Perkins, how she had finally got on his track and how she had located him not a week before the trial. Then he produced a gold watch bearing the initials "H. T. J." and he proved by those who had seen it in Jenks' possession that it had belonged to him.

This evidence having been introduced, counsel proceeded to show how Miss Thorndyke had located Perkins and was watching him when he tried to pawn the watch. The notification to the police by the pawnbroker had been communicated to her, and Perkins had been arrested. At this point the attorney rested his case, and the jury acquitted the prisoner without leaving their seats.

At the trial of Perkins for the murder of Jenks, Wentworth, being now free, was a competent witness and told the story Jenks had told him of the quarrel between the partners and Perkins' threat. This, taken with his trying to pawn the watch, was sufficient evidence to convict him.

Cultivate Promptness.

Promptness is a grand leader, while procrastination limps behind. Today is master of the situation. Tomorrow is an impostor who is almost sure to bring failure with him.—James T. Field.
